

Top 10 LanguageWorkedWith

Top 10 WebFrameWorkedWith

Top 10 LanguageDesireNextYear

Frequency	Percentage
Very often	39.0%
Often	33.7%
Sometimes	13.9%
Rarely	7.5%
Never	~5.9%

A world map illustrating the global distribution of the English language. The map uses a color-coded system: dark red for countries where English is the official language, and light red for countries where it is a second language. Grey areas represent countries where English is not an official or second language. The dark red countries include the United Kingdom, Ireland, Canada, the United States, and Australia. The light red countries include New Zealand, South Africa, India, and several countries in Africa and the Caribbean. The map also shows the outlines of major landmasses and bodies of water.